Addressing the needs of your patient with NVAF and a high risk of stroke in 2018

Atrial Fibrillation is a common heart condition with approximately 1.2 million people affected in the UK. As the population ages, prevalence of atrial fibrillation is increasing and in turn their stroke risk increases.

This practical case-based workshop will help simplify the approach to identify patients with atrial fibrillation and how to manage them in day to day clinical practice

This programme will be led by Dr Jim Moore and Dr Yassir Javaid

Your Learning Agenda...

Part 1: Atrial Fibrillation:

Which patients are the most at risk of having an AF-related stroke

- ▶ Why is an AF-related stroke so devastating?
- ▶ The unmet need in AF
- ▶ Risk stratification and who are your high risk patients
- ▶ Case studies to translate evidence into every day practice
- ▶ Top tips in patient counselling and documenting your consultation
- ▶ Managing anticoagulation: getting the right dose for the right patient

Part 2: Practical Issues in every day practice

- ▶ Interactive cases
- ▶ Rapid fire round on common practical issues in AF management
- ▶ Complex patients
